The litigious Mean Girls actress, 30, reportedly screamed at Tarabasov, 23, in the wee hours of the morning. The Sun published a video that purportedly shows Lohan accusing her fiancé of strangling her. The two were allegedly standing on her multi-million dollar apartment's balcony when the footage was filmed by a neighbor.

"He almost killed me. Everybody will know. Get out of my house! Do it. I dare you again," the woman in the video said.

The woman in the video called the man "f--king crazy."

"You sick f--k. You need help. I'm done," the woman said.

A police spokesperson told Us Weekly that the officers arrived on the scene and forced entry into the address. The actress and her future hubby were no longer on the premises, but the police were able to find and question them. The police left after determining there was no danger and no arrests were made.

A neighbor told The Sun, "She woke our whole house up with her screaming. I was really concerned about her safety - it sounded like she needed help."

Lohan's father Michael told the press that he and his daughter spoke after Saturday night.

"She said he cheated," Michael Lohan said. "I don't think she would say that if it wasn't true. She had never accused him before, you know?"

According to Us Weekly, the fight follows a series of cryptic Instagram posts that Lohan published, alleging Tarabasov cheated on her. Lohan also tweeted that she was pregnant, but it is unclear whether or not that is true.

Today, Lohan posted an Instagram message asking people to respect her privacy as she worked on her relationship.

"I would appreciate if these speculations regarding my personal life would respectfully come to a halt," Lohan said. "Unfortunately, a private matter has become more public than I can control and I would be extremely grateful if my fiancé and myself could discuss our personal matters on our own."
